TO-DAY'S GAMES.

Youngstown at Grand Rapids.

Special Dispatch to the Intelligencer.

GRAND RAPIDS, Mich., July 12.—The Wheeling players, though in midst positions to-day, made it exceedingly warm for the locals. The game was nip and tuck from start to finish, and was won by a chance home run hit by Brad-ley in the ninth. President Ben Johnson and Loftus have been here all day discussing the long-talked-of trade with Columbus, but at 9 o'clock to-night have not reached an agreement. Score:

BASE BALL COMMENT.
Mansfield and Youngstown papers boast of the fact that the owners of those teams have voted for the Grand Rapids transfer to Columbus, says the Toledo Blade. Other cities in the circuit have not given out their votes, but it is quite possible that Wheeling will vote in the affirmative to save railway fares while it would be policy for Dayton to do the same in order to make her position solid for next season. This with Torreyson's vote would clinch the transfer and the league would be gold-bricked by the Prince of Short Skates for the one thousandth time.

Torreyson drifted into the league with a prayer book and a long face. He was shy of money when he signed his team and the league helped him out. He located in one of the best base ball towns in the circuit, a town that Tom Loftus is willing to pay money for with a winning Western league team. By his parsimonious management, Torreyson has, to use the popular expression "limmed" the town until it is no longer any good for a team. Now he wants to move to some other place, but that on the bum, sell a few more players and retire from the league at the end of the season with a little money in his pocket, while the league will have a dead town on its hands and at the same time lose one of the best towns in the league.

What the Inter-State league should do with Mr. Torreyson is to inform him that unless he plays ball properly and gives a town the best team he can afford that his franchise will be put on the block and a new manager put at the head of the team. No town will ever patronize a game after Torreyson has had a chance to gold-brick it with a cheap aggregation of misfit ball players. He never picks up a good man and develops him without figuring up how much he can get for him in open market. The moment a player shows any ability, Torreyson hangs out the red flag and rings a bell to attract bidders. Other managers in the league have expended their time and money to get a good team together, while Torreyson has done his best to keep the ball in every town he has located. He almost succeeded in it while in Toledo; he did it in Wheeling and Grand Rapids and now he wants to take a chance at Columbus, which will not support winning Western league ball simply because Loftus is unpopular there. Torreyson would be doubly so.

The last game played in Grand Rapids by the Toledo team brought out just thirty-five people, all paid admissions. The railroad fare from Toledo, together with board bills and incidental expenses amounted to almost $200. Strobel received as his share of the gate receipts about $125, for the series. Now Torreyson asks the league, if the transfer is made, to play week day games at Columbus for a guarantee of $25 while he would receive $40 while on his trips abroad. How is that for a gold brick proposition? He says the week day attendance at Columbus is not good, still he wishes to transfer his team there, knowing that it is a poor town. There seems to be something behind the deal.

ANOTHER LARGE AUDIENCE
Sees the Vaudeville Show at Wheeling Park.

The vaudeville attraction at the Wheeling Park Casino drew another large audience last night and as on previous occasions the performance was a most pleasing one from start to finish. From the opening act of Everhart, the juggler, to the last, the acrobatic feats of the La Vaus, the performers left nothing to be desired. Miss Burnham in songs, and Messrs. Heron and Gillingwater in their roaring farce made the usual hit. To-night the performance will be repeated. Special motors to and from the Casino are giving excellent service.

IN THE OIL FIELDS.
Producers are justly elated over the recent advances in the credit balance market and are now speculating on where it will stop. There is nothing very bullish in the field situation, but none are inquiring very closely into the cause as long as the market advances two cents at a jump. Tuesday the market for Pennsylvania crude was advanced from $1.19 to $1.21, North Lima from eighty-eight cents to eighty-nine cents; South Lima and Indiana from eighty-three to eighty-four cents, and Seio from $1.29 to $1.31.

In the northeast extension of the Elk Fork pool, in Tyler county, the Jacobs Oil Company's No. 1 on the James Jacobs farm is holding up at two hundred barrels a day. The following shows the gauges of the other wells in that locality, making one hundred or more barrels a day: South Penn. Oil Company No. 2, well, 150 barrels; Yoke & Steelsmith No. 2, Kate Morrow, 150 barrels; Rice Farm Oil Company No. 3, R. F. Rice, 225 barrels; Jacobs Oil Company No. 1, Aaron Jacobs, 200 barrels.

The west of the northeast extension of the Campbell's Run development, in Monongalia county, is not coming up to the expectation of those who played it for a winner some months since, when the big wells were drilled in on the Eddy farms. Courtney & McDermott have completed their test on the Garrison Bros. farm and have a duster. The well was drilled 2,450 feet below the Pittsburgh coal and got a good gas pressure in the Campbell run and Gordon sands.

On the east side of the Flat run development, the South Penn. Oil Company has completed its No. 1 on the Elizabeth Hought farm and has a sixty-barrel producer.

In the Jarvisville district, Harrison county, the same company's No. 5, J. E. Barnes, is holding up at one hundred barrels a day.

On Stillwell creek, Wood county, Barnard & Mead have completed their No. 6 on the S. P. Alliman farm and have a twenty-barrel producer. In the same district and on
